

HOW TO PLAY

In the beginning

Each player starts the game with 6 random picture cards. One player is the storyteller for the turn. He looks at the 6 images in his hand. From one of these, he makes up a sentence and says it out loud (without showing the card to the other players).

The other players select amongst their 6 images the one that best matches the sentence made up by the storyteller. Then, each of the players gives their selected card to the storyteller, without showing it to the others. These picture cards are placed on the table face up where everyone can see them and in random order.

Then every player gets to bet on the picture they think was the storyteller's picture, the one that inspired the sentence originally.

Scoring

If nobody or everybody finds the correct picture, the storyteller scores 0, and each of the other players scores 2. Otherwise the storyteller and whoever found the correct answer scores 3. Players score 1 point for every vote their own picture receives.

The game ends when the deck is empty. The greatest total wins the game.

Game Hints

If the sentence given by the storyteller describes the image too precisely, all the players will easily find it and so he won't score any points.

On the other hand, if his sentence has very little to do with the image, it's quite likely that nobody will vote for him, and again he will score no points.

So the challenge for the storyteller is to find a sentence that is neither too descriptive, nor too abstract, so that there is a chance that only some players find it, but not all.

At the beginning, this can be fairly hard to achieve, but you'll see that the inspiration comes more easily after a few turns.
